UK Outlook for Thursday 9 Sep 2021 to Thursday 23 Sep 2021:
Confidence is decreasing into this period, however there is a signal for high pressure and associated settled conditions to gradually become less dominant, with a trend towards more unsettled weather expected into the second week of September. This may bring changeable conditions with periods of showers and longer spells of rain, interspersed with drier spells at times, especially nearing the end of this period. Confidence is high that temperatures are likely to be near or above average for the time of the year.
